Two distinct towns create one incredible community.

Classic Towns of Greater Philadelphia is an initiative of the Delaware Valley Regional Planning Commission (DVRPC) designed to foster the growth of the region’s older communities by promoting what makes each community a wonderful place to live, work, and play.

Homes & Community
Souderton-Telford offers a special small-town feel. Their highly regarded schools are within walking and biking distance of both boroughs and a new high school will serve educational and community needs long into the future. The housing stock includes row homes, townhouses, twins, and single units. Many are built in traditional styles, including Queen Anne, Arts and Crafts, and Victorian, and much remains unchanged since original construction.

Business & Economy
Many of Souderton-Telford’s businesses can trace their roots in the community for countless generations. Neighbors are very supportive of these local businesses, allowing for their sustained success. Major highways and buses also make it easy for Souderton-Telford residents to access the plentiful opportunities in the surrounding region.

Activities & Destinations
Residents often come together to support civic needs and celebrate their pride of living in such a tight-knit community. Make no mistake, residents take time to have fun. The Boroughs of Souderton and Telford are home to more than 30 different eating establishments. From takeout to fine dining to farmer’s markets, residents enjoy access to an array of incredible options.

Originally inhabited by the Lenape Indians, the land was purchased by William Penn in 1684.

All who live here truly play a part in the community.
