NJDOT PROJECT DEVELOPMENT PROCESS

The first step in the project development process is Problem Statement. Problem Statement is a general description of the problem, submitted to NJDOT. This written description can be prepared and submitted by a number of sources, such as: MPOs, state agencies, county governments, TMAs, municipal officials, public, business/civic groups, or from studies like the Central Jersey Transportation Forum.

During the next step the details of the problem statement are identified through the Concept Development process. The purpose of Concept Development is to deliver projects to Scoping with a well-defined need and a recommended concept that has been environmentally screened and has received community support. Concept Development includes traffic studies, needs analysis, and corridor studies. At the successful conclusion of Concept Development the project becomes a candidate for Scoping.

Feasibility Assessment is the first phase of Scope Development. Sufficient engineering analysis is performed to determine if the concept can be feasibly evolved into a project based on environmental, community, engineering and budget constraints. Scope Development will result in a Initially Preferred Alternative. If it can not be reasonably demonstrated that environmental approvals and community support are forthcoming, the project will neither become a project nor pass in Final Scope Development. Final Scope Development is the second phase of Scoping; it produces a recommended alternative which defines the project scope for final design. During this phase Preliminary Engineering/Design advances far enough to complete the environmental documents, and obtaining formal community input and endorsement for any design exceptions.

The project will then be placed in the draft project pool as a candidate for the Capital Program, if deemed worthy. If a project is deemed “fatally flawed”, it will be recommended for termination or recycled for reconsideration as part of Concept Development. There may be some instances where additional scoping may be warranted to develop a more feasible alternative to address the project need. For most projects, completing the above steps is NJDOT’s responsibility. For a limited number of federal-aid projects, typically for county roads or local bridges, the county or the MPOs have the option to assume project management responsibilities.

Once a project has successfully completed Final Scope Development and made it to the Capital Program it will have funding budgeted to complete the necessary phases for implementation - Engineering, Right-of-Way Acquisition and Construction.

Project development and construction are funded through a number of funding sources. Some of the more significant sources are - Federal-aid Bridge funds for bridges on the federal-aid system or for bridges off the federal-aid system State Bridge Discretionary funding are used; National Highway System funds are used for improvements to the Interstate Highway System and other key highway links (e.g., US 1 and US 130). Surface Transportation Program supports the remaining roads on the federal-aid system.
