DELAWARE VALLEY REGIONAL PLANNING COMMISSION

REGIONAL DATA BULLETIN

Housing Units Authorized by Residential Building Permits, 2000 through 2009

No. 90
January 2011

The Delaware Valley Regional Planning Commission is an interstate, intercounty, and intercity agency that provides comprehensive and coordinated planning for the orderly growth of the Greater Philadelphia region. As the region's metropolitan planning organization (MPO), the Commission provides technical assistance and services to its member state, county, and local governments; the private sector; and the public. Delaware Valley Data is our periodic series of free data bulletins, data snapshots, and analytical reports. This data bulletin contains residential building permit data for 2000 through 2009 for the extended 28-county data service region (see map on page 3) and replaces Data Bulletin No. 88, published in August 2008. The data is derived from current reports and publications compiled by the Bureau of the Census Construction Statistics Division.

Municipalities provide the Census Bureau with tabulations of the number of housing units authorized, according to types of structures. In the few cases where municipalities reported building permit activity for some months but not for all twelve months, the Census Bureau estimates the total yearly number of building permits based on past building permit activity (referred to as imputation). The figures presented in this bulletin are for the total number of housing units authorized in each of the following types:

- ◆ One-unit structures, including single-family houses or structures with one dwelling unit, including semi-detached and row houses if the units are separated by a ground to roof party wall. Mobile homes are not included.
- ◆ Two or more unit structures, including:
 - Duplexes or structures with two dwelling units. If built side-by-side, they do not have a ground-to-roof party wall and generally have a common attic, basement, heating plant, and other features.
 - Structures with three or more units. Each building contains three or more units sharing a common basement, heating plant, stairs, water supply, or entrance. Triplexes, garden apartments, and high-rise buildings are included in this category, as well as condominiums and cooperatively-owned apartment buildings.

Table 1 summarizes residential building permit activity between 2000 and 2009 by type of structure for each county in the nine-county Greater Philadelphia region. Table 2 identifies the 20 municipalities in the Greater Philadelphia region that issued the greatest number of building permits for new housing units between January 1, 2000 and December 31, 2009, and Table 3 identifies municipalities that issued the most residential building permits between 2000 and 2009 as a percent of the municipality's housing units in 2000, as a more meaningful indication of the impact of new residential construction in each municipality.

Table 4 describes regional and sub-regional residential building permit activity and Table 5 provides the total number of building permits issued between 2000 and 2009 by county for the 28-county DVRPC extended data services area. Appendix A lists the number of new housing units authorized by residential building permit by type of structure by municipality in the 28-county extended data services area between 2000 and 2009.

AREA DEFINITIONS

In addition to providing data for the nine county Greater Philadelphia region and its extended data services area, this data bulletin aggregates data as per the definitions of statistical areas issued by the federal Office of Management and Budget (OMB) in November 2007. The OMB defines Metropolitan, Micropolitan, and Combined Statistical Areas; New England City and Town Areas; and Metropolitan Divisions, for use in federal statistical analyses. These areas are updated periodically to reflect changes in the population, based on the Census Bureau's Population Estimates Program (PEP). Comparisons of this data with regional information issued earlier than 2007 should be made with caution but can be accomplished by aggregating individual county data.

- ◆ The Philadelphia-Camden-Wilmington Metropolitan Statistical Area (MSA) consists of the Philadelphia, Pennsylvania Metropolitan Division; the Camden, New Jersey Metropolitan Division; and the Wilmington, Delaware-Maryland-New Jersey Metropolitan Division.
 - The Philadelphia, Pennsylvania Metropolitan Division includes Bucks, Chester, Delaware, Montgomery, and Philadelphia counties in Pennsylvania.
 - The Camden, New Jersey Metropolitan Division includes Burlington, Camden, and Gloucester counties in New Jersey.
 - The Wilmington, Delaware-Maryland-New Jersey Metropolitan Division includes New Castle County, Delaware; Cecil County, Maryland; and Salem County, New Jersey.
- ◆ The Trenton-Ewing MSA includes Mercer County, New Jersey.

HIGHLIGHTS

- ◆ Residential construction permits were issued for over 150,000 housing units in the nine-county Greater Philadelphia region between 2000 and 2009, as evidenced in Table 1. The highest percentages of these permits were issued in Chester, Montgomery, and Bucks counties.
- ◆ Philadelphia, which is both a city and a county, issued the most permits of any single municipality, with 16,567 residential building permits issued between 2000 and 2009.
- ◆ Suburban municipalities with significant residential construction activity over the decade include Hamilton Township (Mercer County), Woolwich Township (Gloucester County), Winslow Township (Camden County), Warrington Township (Bucks County), and Evesham Township (Burlington County), each of which issued permits for over 2,000 additional residential units. The 52,594 residential permits issued between 2000 and 2009 in the twenty municipalities identified in Table 2 account for almost 35 percent of all permits issued in the nine-county region during the same years.
- ◆ The vast majority of residential permits issued throughout the DVRPC region and its extended data services area between 2000 and 2009 were issued for single-family units, including 79 percent of the permits issued throughout the 28-county region as a whole and 74 percent of the permits issued in DVRPC's nine-county region. In the DVRPC region, the percent of permits issued for single family units by county ranges from a low of 17 percent in the City of Philadelphia to highs of 92 percent in Chester County, Pennsylvania and 87 percent in Gloucester County, New Jersey.
- ◆ The 2,419 housing units authorized by permits in Woolwich Township (Gloucester County) between 2000 and 2009 represent an increase of 236 percent over the township's 2000 housing stock of just over 1,000 units, as illustrated in Table 3. Just over 1,200 residential permits were issued in Penn Township (Chester County) between 2000 and 2009, but with under 1,100 units in the township in 2000, the township's housing stock will more than double once construction of the newly authorized units is completed. Similarly, the 1,702 residential permits issued in Bethel Township (Delaware County) represent an 84 percent increase over the township's total units in 2000.
- ◆ Over 425,000 units were authorized by residential building permits in the 28-county area between 2000 and 2009, as evidenced in Table 4. This includes 187,650 units in the fourteen New Jersey counties; 182,913 units in the ten Pennsylvania counties; 32,456 units in the two Delaware counties; and 22,464 units in the two Maryland counties.
- ◆ Residential construction activity continues to slow throughout the 28-county region. The annual number of residential building permits issued in the 28-county region peaked in 2004 but has declined every year since, to low of 18,409 in 2009.

DVRPC 28-County Data Service Area

- ◆ As illustrated in Table 5, more residential permits were issued in 2009 than in 2008 in only six of the 28 counties (Gloucester, Hunterdon, and Warren counties in New Jersey; Lehigh and Delaware counties in Pennsylvania; and Harford County, Maryland). In general, residential construction activity has declined since the beginning of the decade; more residential units were authorized between 2005 and 2009 than between 2000 and 2004 in only two counties: Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and Cumberland County, New Jersey. Counties that realized the greatest decline in the number of residential building permits issued between 2005 and 2009 as compared to those issued between 2000 and 2004 include Ocean County, New Jersey; Bucks, Chester, and Berks counties in Pennsylvania, and New Castle County, Delaware.

- ◆ The greatest number of units authorized by residential building permits during the decade was in Ocean County, New Jersey, followed by Chester, Montgomery, and York counties in Pennsylvania and Monmouth County, New Jersey.

NOTES

While data on the numbers and types of authorized residential construction are useful indicators of where development is taking place, data users must be cautious in using these statistics as indices of municipal population growth. For example, there can be substantial delays between the issuance of a building permit and actual construction. When large multi-family complexes are involved, complete build-out of all approved units may take several years. Additionally, some permitted units may never be built, although the Census Bureau estimates that 98 percent of all housing units authorized are eventually constructed.

The permit activity reported in this bulletin refers to new construction only, and does not include the production of housing units through conversions or alterations (unless the construction costs exceed $100,000). The permit data also does not take into account the gains or losses to the housing stock that result from changes in the use of structures or for units removed due to demolition, fire damage, other forms of destruction, or abandonment. Additionally, this data bulletin reports only the number of permits issued for single-unit structures or in structures with two or more units. More specific information on the number of units in duplexes, triplexes, structures with four units, or structures with five or more units is available by contacting DVRPC. Finally, building permit tabulations cannot provide any information on occupancy or vacancy, or on the types and sizes of households which occupy either the newly constructed units or the already existing housing stock.
